Varies by program

Accommodations are provided for students either through a form or test assignment.

Form-controlled

A separate form controls each accommodation; therefore, students assigned the same accommodation receive different forms.

If a student test assignment includes a form-based accommodation, PearsonAccess^{next} makes the form available to that test during session preparation.

You cannot update an accommodation assignment when a student test session has started and/or the student has started testing.

Each of these accommodations have a value representation in PearsonAccess^{next}. The value appears next to the student test.

Hover over the accommodation value to view the full name.

Test assignment-controlled

Each accommodation has the same form, but specific values are passed to TestNav to turn the accommodations on or off (or to make a one or more available to a student test).

If selected for a student test, accommodations appear to a student upon sign in.
